MOVING STONE HAS FALLEN
Remarkable Natural Curiosity at Tandil, Argentina, Has Topped Over at Last.

To the deepest regret of Argentinians, the moving stone of Tandil, a remarkable natural curiosity, has fallen. No one knows how many centuries this huge rock, which the Argentinians proudly proclaimed as one of the seven wonders of the world, has stood among the granite hills of Tandil, perfectly poised on its narrow fulcrum less than eight inches square. The Tandil quarries are situated about two hundred and fifty miles south of Buenos Ayres, and every summer tourists have been accustomed to make the pilgrimage from the capital to carve their names on its ancient sides. Standing in a certain position, a child could cause the great stone to rock up and down fully four inches. Visitors never tired of throwing under it as it swung upward pieces of glass and small stones, which would be crushed to powder on the downward way. Tradition has it that the tyrant Rosa, a name of ill-omen in Argentine history, in a savage mood some thirty years ago tried to dislodge the moving stone, using forty voke of oxen to accomplish his purpose. Whether the tale is true or not, the old sentinel continued to maintain his watch over the surrounding fertile plains, apparently undisturbed by either the friendliness or the hostility of mankind. The elements likewise were foiled in their warfare, though once a bolt of lightning exacted tribute by ripping off a piece weighing about three tons. What finally caused the downfall of the giant boulder is a mystery.

AS SHE LOOKED AT IT

Frank (after she has accepted his proposal)—But I'm afraid I'm not good enough for you, dearest.
Tessie—I know; but you're too good to be thrown away on some other girl.

AS A STRANGER SEES US.

A famous European diplomat on a visit to the United States was asked his opinion of New York city. His reply was:

"Oh, it will probably be a very nice place when it is finished."

Pittsburgh would have brought an emphasis on this reply. For no city looks much more unfinished than this. The cliffs and ledges rearing all about with nothing to relieve their bare sides—houses at the top and houses at the bottom—give the impression that the place was hurriedly dumped down in the most convenient spots. It detracts greatly from the appearance of the city that some genius has not fixed upon a method to relieve the bareness and ugliness of those ridges. It has been done elsewhere.

AFRICAN DIAMONDS.

The newest diamond field is in the Kasai River district, Belgian Congo, West Africa. The famous De Beers group of mines at Kimberly, South Africa, have heretofore furnished 95 per cent. of the world's diamond supply. Their annual output is about $44,000,000, and since their discovery in 1867 they have produced $600,000,000 worth of diamonds. The remaining five or six per cent. of the world's supply has come from India, Brazil, Borneo and Australia. There are many diamond occurrences in the United States, but none so far of any important commercial consequence.

TARIFF EXPERT.

"What is your object in wanting them to start a revision of the tariff immediately?"

"I don't want to start a revision," replied Senator Sorghum. "What I want to do is to start the kind of an argument that will be its own explanation of indefinite delay."

AGAINST H.S. PET THEORY
Doctor Condemned Practice of Eating Oysters Raw, but Results Did Not Justify Him.

They say that it was the first oyster that Dr. McCarthy had ever eaten. That may be, and yet he ate it at a church supper. Now, it is probable that he has attended other church suppers. If he has, it is scarcely possible that he has not eaten oysters before.

But Dr. McCarthy is a physician who lives on Long Island, where there is a plentiful supply of shell fish, and he has always told his patients not to eat raw oysters. He has said that raw oysters are likely to be unwholesome. Maybe he had followed his own advice up to the time of the church supper. At any rate, first oyster or not first oyster, he found a great big pearl in one that was put before him at the supper, and it wasn't cooked, either, and spoiled, because the oysters were unwholesomely raw.

Dr. McCarthy has given the pearl to the church, to be sold for the church's benefit. It is not stated whether he is going to eat any more raw oysters in the hope of finding another pearl. But that would be a good argument for his patients who like oysters.

TRIALS AND TRIBULATIONS

Mrs. Henpex—Job Henpex, you are a man with positively no convictions.

Henpex—Perhaps not, Penelope, but I'm having trials enough all right.

LONG TWENTY-FOUR HOURS.

To be imprisoned for twenty-four hours with snakes and rats as companions was the recent experience of a Salida, Colo., hotel clerk, named Burrows. While taking a walk in the mountains near there the man entered a deserted mine, using lighted matches to guide him. He fell into a pit twelve feet deep, receiving painful cuts about the head. His cries were finally heard by three boys, who rescued him.

SUCCESSFUL RUSE.

"Well, Jingle," said the manager, "did you make the sale?"

"Yes," said the salesman. "I couldn't get the darned old machine to run over half-speed, but I arranged with one of the town constables to arrest us for exceeding the speed limit, and old Skeesicks fell for it right away."—Judge.

ON HIS KNEES.

Ethel—Jack Huggard told me a long story last night.

Kitty—Is he an interesting story teller?

Ethel—I should say so; he held his audience from start to finish.

WARM REPLY.

Mrs. Crawford—The janitor got angry when I told him the apartment was cold.

Crawford—I hope he was angry enough to answer with some heat.—Judge.

FORESIGHT.

"You must believe in saving for a rainy day, Blinks?"

"Er, ah, I do; but why?"

"Nothing, only that's the second umbrella of mine you've borrowed."—Woman's Home Companion.

LITERALLY OR FIGURATIVELY.

Mrs. Exe—Do you ever ask your husband to bring up the coal?"

Mrs. Wye—No, I sometimes put the hod in his way, but he never tumbles.

SOUND.

"Is your husband a sound sleeper?"

"Sound? I should say so! The sound he makes can be heard for half a block."—Judge's Library.
